Safety Supervision: Making Defensible Decisions at the Front Line

On a construction site, every supervisor is one decision away from court.

Construction kills more workers than almost any other industry in Australia. When it does, regulators look directly at the supervisors who were present, who had authority, and who made — or failed to make — a defensible decision.

LEGAL CONTEXT

In W.A.S.S. Nominees Pty Ltd (2021), prosecution followed a fatality where supervisors had not adequately assessed risk or documented their decision rationale. The absence of a defensible record was decisive.

Built for construction supervisors and site managers.
